MOHS Workplace Health finds new supplier through Find it in Sandwell website

MOHS Workplace Health is pleased to announce that they have awarded the contract for the design of their new Workplace Health Training Course 2010 Booklet to local design company, Pragmatic Design.

Helen Mackenzie, General Manager of MOHS Workplace Health said “We decided to put this vital piece of work out to tender on Find it in Sandwell, as part of our strategy to get much more involved in the local community and source more locally. We were amazed by both the number and quality of responses that we had – it’s a shame that we have to pick just one provider”.

“Pragmatic Design demonstrated a real creative flair as well as a solid understanding of our brief, all at a very competitive price”, commented Mark Jinks, Training Supervisor at MOHS Workplace Health.

The Training Course Booklet will show case all of the Workplace Health Training Courses on offer for 2010. MOHS has expanded the number of courses as well as added additional venues. The booklet will be available on the new MOHS Workplace Health website (ready December 2009) as an interactive pdf, where bookings can be made online for a discount on bookings by post and telephone.

John-Lee Langford from Pragmatic Design said “We were delighted to win this piece of work, the tender was highly competitive, and I am thrilled to be working on this exciting project. I would really recommend businesses to register with Find it in Sandwell” – we are pleased with the new work it’s bringing our way”.
